

RAILROAD UNIONS OBJECT TO TELLING OF THEIR PART

DIXON'S BEST FOOT WILL BE PUT FORWARD

Finest Talent in City to Take Part; City's Merits to be Told

The Dixon Chamber of Commerce committee, which is arranging the program to be broadcasted from WAMQ, the Chicago Daily News broadcasting station Friday evening, announce another outstanding feature of their program. The committee has worked very hard in getting the very best of talent and has succeeded in securing Mrs. Maud Arnes Goodsell as one of the featured artists of Dixon, one of the foremost mezzo contraltos in the country. The committee feels that it will be a real pleasure for radio fans and friends of Mrs. Goodsell's to hear her Friday night, when she will sing "The Salvation of the Dawn" by Frederick Stevenson.

Mrs. Goodsell is one of the leading voice teachers of Dixon and vicinity. She studied organ, piano, voice and technique at Bolt College under Prof. Allen of Boston, who is recognized as being one of the best teachers anywhere. She also studied under David Bispham of New York, who is an authority in the musical world. As an accompanist and soloist for the Ladies Shebier Quartet of Chicago for two seasons, Mrs. Goodsell was in every state west of Illinois and sang in all of the principal cities. Recently she was offered the position of accompanist for Kryn, the world's greatest cornetist, who recently played with his band in Dixon.

Has Charming Voice
At the present time Mrs. Goodsell is studying under Madam Elsie Harthan Arendt of Chicago, who has been chosen as soloist for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in their annual touring tour. Madam Arendt has said that Mrs. Goodsell's voice has all of the finest qualities she has ever listened to and one that possesses all of the beautiful qualities of a mezzo contralto voice.

The committee also announces that A. W. Rawls of Dixon, one of Mrs. Goodsell's pupils will take part on the program. Mr. Rawls possesses a very fine baritone voice that has all of the natural qualities that will develop into a master voice.

Mr. Rawls has been soloist for a number of the Dixon churches and has had experience in broadcasting, as he recently broadcasted from Davenport, Ia., from WOC. On Saturday night of this week he will again be heard as he is broadcasting from another station in Chicago. It is predicted that Mr. Rawls has a very bright future in the musical world. He will sing "Until" by Wilfred Sanderson.

To Tell of Dixon
Robert Hallenberg, director of Public Relations for the I. N. U. Company will deliver a short address on Dixon, telling of its history and advantages. It will be a pleasure to hear him as he is considered a very capable speaker and can hold any group for any length of time.

From the reports that are coming in a very large crowd will be on hand to hear the fine program that has been arranged. People from all over the country are planning on being in Dixon Friday evening to hear the broadcasting from 8:50 to 10:00 o'clock. Through the special arrangements, which are being furnished by the Chicago Daily News, every one will be able to hear clearly and distinctly the entire program. The amplifiers will be placed on the corner of Second and Galena and the city authorities are planning on handling the traffic and crowds to the very best advantage.

Everyone is interested in radio at the present time and this is an opportunity that one cannot afford to miss in hearing a program from a central receiving station that can be heard for a radius of several blocks. A great many people have wondered how great crowds could hear a single speaker and here will be the opportunity to see how it is done.

Miss Brehm Cannot Get to Dixon for Address
Word has been received here by Mrs. Herman Missman, president of the W. C. T. U. to the effect that Miss Marie Brehm, candidate for vice president on the Prohibition ticket, will not be able to be here Friday afternoon to make the address at the Methodist church which was announced. Miss Brehm's engagements in the southern part of the state conflict with her engagement here and she will be unable to get here.

Cairo, Ill., Oct. 30.—Philip Martin, 35, who Tuesday shot and killed his wife on their farm near Elco, Ill., and then turned his gun on himself, died last night. Jealousy prompted by a mental derangement following an accident in a silica mine is believed to have caused his action.

THE ETERNAL BATTLE

A constant and never-ending battle is waged between two giants.

One giant is Government-by-Minority. He controlled the people for thousands of years. They had no voice in how they were ruled. Their lives and their wealth were at the evil giant's disposal. Government was corrupt, cruel, enslaving.

The other giant is Government-by-Majority. This giant is kindly. He is the champion of the right and welfare of the people. He stands for all that is good and desirable. Above all, he brings political freedom and the opportunity for clean government.

These two giants fought for centuries—thousands of years. Our ancestors gave their blood and treasure to help Government-by-Majority finally win. To us came a sacred heritage, the ballot, the right to rule ourselves instead of being ruled by and for others.

But increasingly the people are failing to vote. Nearly half of the citizens, eligible to vote, stayed away from the polls in the 1920 presidential election.

Our protector, Government-by-Majority, once more is in peril of losing out. He needs ammunition—ballots—to keep the other giant, Government-by-Minority, subdued.

Which giant will you help this year? If you vote, you help Government-by-Majority.

If you neglect to vote, you help Government-by-Minority.

Vote without fail Vote without fail Vote without fail!

Your vote is needed! Your vote is needed! Your vote is needed!

PRICE BROS. TO BUILD POWER CO. PLANT IN IOWA

Also Asked to Bid on $5,000,000 Job in Louisville, Ky.

The Price Brothers Construction Company, who are building the new I. N. U. hydro plant here, were yesterday awarded the contract for another large hydro project at Oakland Mills, Ia. The Iowa Electric company awarded the contract to Price Brothers unit hydro plant to cost $200,000. A reinforced concrete dam, 350 feet in length is also included in the contract. The plant, which is situated on the Skunk river, now accommodates two turbines, and these are to be replaced and another double unit added. President Harry Price stated this morning that he expected to move some of the equipment from Dixon to Oakland Mills about the first of January.

The contracting firm has been urged to bid on a $5,000,000 sewer project in Louisville, Ky. Highly satisfactory work on other large contracts in that section, has brought forth several requests for a bid on this extensive improvement which is covered by a bond issue and will mean the rebuilding of the entire sewer system in Louisville.

Progress on the work locally has proceeded beyond expectations. Mr. Price announced today. To date the work is far ahead of schedule and barring unforeseen delays, the Price company will have completed their contract about the first of February. Ideal weather conditions have proved invaluable in the cement work, which is far ahead of the schedule. To date approximately 3500 cubic yards of concrete has been poured, 2400 yards of this having been poured this month. There remains about 2500 yards yet to be poured and with present weather conditions, this will be completed in a very few weeks.

LABOR GOVT. OF BRITAIN MEETS FULL OVERTHROW

Conservatives Will Be in Full Control of Affairs Now.

London, Oct. 30.—(By The Associated Press)—The conservative party has won 308 seats in yesterday's general election, insuring them a majority over all the other parties in the new parliament, it was announced shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Unlike the labor government which has just fallen, the conservatives will be able to rule as well as to govern and perhaps thus to fix the governmental saddle for the full legal parliamentary life time of five years if they want to, so strong was the tide that has carried them to triumph.

There was no extensive part of the country in which the conservatives did not increase their strength. They recaptured long lost seats in cities and rural districts alike.

The thickly populated industrial centers of the north midlands abandoned both liberals and laborites to get under the Tory banner as did the great shipping centers and the small towns and villages, almost without exception, in every farming area of the nation.

Labor held tight its grip upon most of the congested areas in the great urban centers such as Glasgow and London but even some of these shifted from socialism to conservatism.

Many liberals stepped down to permit conservatives to have straight fights with labor opponents and a great majority of the liberals who did not step down were put down when the ballots were counted.

Agas observers of the ebb and flow of party power in British politics expressed the opinion that the wholesale flight of voters from the liberal party was due to the popular fear that, by votes for the liberals, especially in three sided contests, the socialists under the banner of labor might be enabled to gain the seats. Because of this fear, countless thousands of voters are said by these political observers to have abandoned

Comparing the present campaign to a boxing match, Mr. Dawes here last night declared that LaFollette "like many people in a fight had begun to weaken in about the thirtieth round," and added that "when a man attempts to explain in a fight it is his defeat."

Mr. Dawes after his speech at St. Joseph tonight will return to Chicago to spend Friday at home before undertaking his final campaign tour Saturday into Indiana.

Now Thought Mail Man Left Home to Find New Location

Suit of Summer Clothing
Missing; Search in River Given Up.

All thought that Thomas Hults, parcel post deliveryman, who disappeared mysteriously Tuesday afternoon, had succumbed by drowning in Rock river, had been abandoned by local officials today and work of dragging the river west of the city had ceased. Today it was thought that if he was suffering from temporary mental derangement that he might be wandering about in the southwest part of the country.

Another theory was advanced this morning which leads to the belief that he may have planned leaving this locality without notifying any person where he has relatives. This morning it was ascertained that a brown coat and a pair of light trousers which he had worn during his vacation in the summer, were missing. These garments were not among his other articles of wearing apparel at his home, in his locker at the post office or at the meat market on Hennepin avenue. This information was carefully checked upon by the police this forenoon after a thorough search had been made in the land north of the Rock Island road and west of the city limits.

No Clue or Report
Despite the fact that a thorough description of the missing merchant and postal employe has been broadcasted throughout the middle west, authorities have received no clue or report of any person having seen him after he was reported to have been seen walking west of the city and south of the city dump ground. This was the last trace the officials have of him.

Working on the theory that the man may have been temporarily deranged because of worries, plans were being made this afternoon to have an airplane make a thorough tour of the country in Nelson township. Wilson McClanahan with his airplane and an observer, it was said, would be sent up to scout over corn fields and swamps west and south of the city in a final effort to locate Mr. Hults.

POLICE ISSUE WARNING FOR TOMORROW EVE

Defacing or Destruction of Property to Be Punished.

"Celebrate Halloween all you want but do not destroy property," is the order issued this morning by Chief J. D. Van Bibber to the boys and girls of the city. The police headquarters laid particular stress on the fact that they wanted the children to have a good time and that there will be no restrictions placed upon clean, good natured, harmless celebrating.

Special warning is given against the practice of marking up automobiles, and daubing houses or windows with paint. Marking automobiles with soap permanently damages the finish and the police will be instructed to keep a special watch for violators of this rule.

No arrests will be made except in cases where celebrators over step the line of good-natured celebrating. Every violation of the rule against defacing or destroying property in any way will be punished to the fullest extent of the law.

The police force has been augmented by a number of special policemen over the Halloween season and a close watch will be kept to see that Halloween is properly observed.

HEAD OF B. R. C. SIDESTEPS IN REPLIES TODAY

Will Show Correspondence if He Can Find It, He Declares

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Through L. E. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railway conductors, counsel for the republican national committee sought to show today before the Chicago section of the senate campaign committee that "the LaFollette campaign is subsidized by the railroad brotherhoods."

Sheppard objected to being questioned regarding letters he had written to members of his order, including one to Fred Stewart of Oakland, Calif., saying that he wanted protection from the going into matters that might cause controversies within his organization.

Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for the republican national committee, insisted upon having the correspondence, saying he thought the committee should be interested in getting at the facts and that he thought it would be interested. He added that he wanted to show that the railway labor organizations were interested in future legislation as to government ownership of the railroads and "laws affecting the use of the injunction in labor disputes."

Davis Supporter Objects
Samuel Untermyer, New York lawyer and a supporter of John W. Davis, objected and he and Kirkland had several sharp fights with a result that Chairman Borah said the committee might have to conduct the inquiry exclusively and independent of counsel. Senator Borah took over the examination.

Sheppard said his organization had been active in politics for some time, supporting candidates for congress and state officers. He cited that it had been behind a republican candidate for senator in Nebraska and a democratic candidate for governor in that state.

In the present campaign the Order of Conductors has field workers out. They have reported a total of $318 and in addition $18,302 has been contributed by local labor organizations. Senator Borah pressed for the approximate total contributions of the 17 labor organizations to the national campaign.

Thirty Full Time Workers
Sheppard said he had about thirty full time field workers throughout the country campaigning for the independent salaries and expenses of this group were paid from the "protective fund" of the railroad labor organizations to which each member contributed $2 annually.

In certain localities, Sheppard continued, local organizations were conducting systematic work in behalf of certain congressional candidates but any funds expended in such work was entirely outside his jurisdiction which centered on the national ticket.

"Can you tell us how much you have spent in this campaign," asked Senator Shipstead, farmer labor, Minnesota.

"Our budget calls for $35,000 for 1924."

Smith said that his organization had collected "approximately $70,000."

"Was that turned over to the national committee?" asked Senator Borah.

"We have turned nothing over to the republican national committee."

"Has the fund been used for the state campaign only?"

"State and national."

It developed that $40,000 of the $70,000 had been given by the national committee.

Smith could not give the names of the contributors to the $30,000 state fund other than the candidates for office. He said there was a treasurer, but he is "not active."

"How was this money expended?"

"In the usual way, for speakers and the like."

More than $20,000 has been spent—publicity, literature and advertising, Smith said.

Keeps No Books
Questioned by Untermyer, the witness said the state committee keeps no books.

"So there's no way of telling how much money has been received or expended in detail?" Untermyer asked.

"Yes," Smith said, "a bank account was kept."

"Do you know of any 'slush fund' to be used in Illinois?" asked Kirkland.

"I do not."

"Were there any large contributions, such as $25,000?"

"No."

L. J. Peter, a publisher of German language newspapers in Omaha and other Nebraska cities, said he had reentered into "an arrangement" with the republican national committee to distribute his papers among the German speaking population in Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota where there are no republican German language papers.

Peter said he was to send out 200,000 copies and had received $10,000 from the republican committee and that $2,500 more is due.

"Who furnished the material for these publications?" asked Senator Borah.

"Most of it I furnished. The republican national committee furnished some."

Chicago, Oct. 30.—More light on expenditures on behalf of the LaFollette-Wheeler national ticket as well as on behalf of the Coolidge-Dawes slate was sought today by the Chicago section of the senate campaign fund investigating committee.

Today's Market Report

Wheat and Corn Suffer Reaction During Trade

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 30.—Grain underwent a general downturn in price today during early dealings. There was a decided pause in the aggressive buying which was such a powerful factor yesterday in hoisting corn values and strengthening other cereals. Unresponsive action of the Liverpool wheat market today in the face of yesterday's advances here had an evident bearing on the wheat market. Prices which ranged from 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 lower, Dec. 1.43 1/4 and May 1.43 1/4, were followed by a setback that in some cases went nearly 2c under yesterday's finish.

Further losses ensued, rallies failing to hold. Export demand was said to be light even for deferred shipment. The close was unsettled 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 net lower, Dec. 1.41 1/4 and May 1.41 1/4. Corn declined with wheat. After opening unchanged to 1c off, Dec. 1.06 1/2, corn fell to 1 1/4 under yesterday's final figures.

Oats started at 1/4 to 1/2 down, Dec. 50 1/2 and later continued to sag. Disappointing returns from husking were again numerous and after a further downturn the corn market ran into a good class of buying. The close was nervous 1/4 to 1/2 net lower, Dec. 1.05 1/4 and May 1.05 1/4.

TIMES GO BY TURNS—

The lopped tree in time may grow again.
 Most naked plants renew both fruit and flower.
 The sorriest wight may find relief from pain.
 The dried soil suck in some moistening shower.
 Time goes by turns, and chances change by course.
 From foul to fair, from better hap to worse.

The sea of Fortune doth not ever flow:
 She draws her favors to the lowest ebb.
 Her tides have equal times to come and go.
 Her loom doth weave the fine and coarsest web:
 No joy so great but runneth to an end.
 No hap so hard but may in fine amend.

Not always fall of leaf, nor ever Spring:
 Not endless night, yet not eternal day:
 The saddest birds a season find to sing:
 The roughest storm a calm may soon allay.
 Thus, with succeeding turns 'God tempereth all.
 That man may hope to rise, yet fear to fall.

A chance may win that by mischance was lost;
 That net that holds no great takes little fish:
 In some things all in all things none are lost;
 Few all they need, but none have all they wish.
 Unmingled joys here to no man befall:
 Who least, hath some; who most, hath never all.

—Robert Southwell.

SERVED MOST DELICIOUS CHICKEN SUPPER—

Three hundred were in attendance at the delicious chicken supper served by the ladies of the Congregational church of Lee Center preceding the political meeting Tuesday evening. The ladies deserve great credit for the delicious repast and the manner of serving same.

Another feature of much interest was the Community Orchestra which has been organized but a few months but which shows every evidence of becoming one of the principal orchestras of the county. The orchestra gave several most enjoyable selections before the political talks given by Loyal Republicans including County Chairman Harry Warner, Attorney Mark C. Keller, Rev. P. H. Case and others.

ATTENDED SUPPER AND REPUBLICAN RALLY—

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Rosbrook, Mrs. W. G. Murray and Miss Grace Crawford attended the supper and Republican meeting in Lee Center Tuesday.

Menus for a Family

Tested by SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—Grapes, whole wheat cooked cereal, thin cream, egg timbales with creamed spinach, whole wheat toast, marmalade, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Dried bean soup, creamed onions, whole wheat bread and butter, orange bavianian cream, plain cake, milk, tea.

Dinner—Broiled porter house steak, mashed potatoes, baked squash, tomato jelly salad, whole wheat rolls and bread, apple tapioca pudding, sponge cake, milk, coffee.

With the exception, of course, of the tea and coffee mentioned in this menu there is nothing a child of four years can not eat.

The beef should be cooked rare and cut very fine and the salad should be dressed with French dressing rather than mayonnaise.

Egg Timbales
 Four eggs, 1 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Beat eggs slightly with milk. Beat in salt and pepper and pour into buttered timbales or custard cups.

Place in a pan of hot water and bake half an hour in a moderate oven until firm to the touch. Do not let the water boil during the baking.

Turn out of the molds and serve surrounded by the creamed spinach.

Dried Bean Soup
 One and one-half cups dried beans, 1-4 teaspoon onion, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon minced onion.

Wash and pick over beans. Cover with cold water and let stand several hours or overnight, depending on the age of the beans. Drain and put into kettle with about two quarts of cold water and the soda.

Bring to the boiling point and let boil three or four minutes. Pour off water. Do not throw this water into the sink. Wash beans under running water and return to kettle.

Add minced onion. Pour over about two quarts of boiling water and cook slowly until tender, from three to four hours. Add water as necessary. Rub through sieve. Add salt, pepper, sugar, milk and butter and reheat.

Orange Bavarian Cream
 One-half cup orange juice, 1-2 lemon, 1-2 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon granulated gelatin, 4 teaspoons cold water.

Grate rind and squeeze juice from lemon. Combine orange juice, lemon, sugar, salt and yolks of eggs.

Cook, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Add gelatin soaked in water. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry. Beat in orange mixture. Set bowl in a pan of ice water and beat until mixture is thick and stiff enough to hold its shape. Turn into a mould and set on ice until needed.

PUT WATER ON PIE
 Before putting a pie in the oven hold is under the cold water faucet at an angle, letting the water trickle gently over the top and turning the plate until the entire surface is wet.

CRANBERRY JELLY
 Cranberry jelly will keep all winter if you put it while hot in jelly glasses and cover with paraffin.

CELERY AS GARNISH
 Use bits of celery to garnish creamed turkey or turkey salad. Use the outside stalks for celery soup or creamed celery.

HOT SANDWICHES
 Hot chicken or turkey sandwiches are a good way to use up chicken or turkey. They are made by placing slices of the meat between slices of buttered bread or toast and pouring gravy over them.

PUT SAND IN SOIL
 If you want geraniums to bloom all winter put them in pots containing ordinary soil mixed with some sand so that the soil will drain freely and yet be light enough to encourage a good root growth.

USE COLD WATER
 If you have a bouquet of roses keep them in very cold water. For that reason a good sized vase is better as the water will stay cool longer than in a small one.

CLASSES TO HAVE HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL—
 The members of the True Blue Class

- LEE COUNTY'S FRIEND.

If there is anything in appreciation, Lee county owes Governor Len Small a rousing big vote on next Tuesday. When have we had a Governor who has done as much for Lee county as Governor Small has done with his good roads program? Governor Small seems to have been aware of the fact that Lee county is on the map. In fact, he has put us in a very prominent place upon the map—the road map. When all the roads now being built and including those proposed by the next bond issue, are completed, Dixon will have six state paved highways leading out of the city, and the eastern half of Lee county will be traversed by still another paved highway. Many hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of pavement for Lee county at absolutely no cost to the county or the taxpayer.

The improvement menas more to the businessmen of Dixon and other Lee county towns than would a dozen factories. The taxpayers of the county are relieved of an enormous burden in the matter of building and maintaining main highways.

All this proves that since Len Small was elected Governor Lee county has had a friend in the executive chair at Springfield. Do we want to keep him there? Do we still want a man in Springfield who will see that Lee county gets a just share of these public benefits? The Black Hawk trail to Rockford is yet to be built. The pavement to Princeton is yet to be built. The other pavements are yet to be completed. We know Len Small will finish this splendid work for us. We don't know what would happen if Jones were elected and the State of Illinois were turned over, lock, stock and barrel, to Boss Brennan, the Chicago politician who is czar of Democracy in Illinois.

YOUR POWERS OF TELEPATHY.

He shipped himself in an express box, in Texas. And Bill Baker, 18, was nearly dead of thirst when he was rescued by a case of mental telepathy.

B. B. Neeley, express messenger who discovered Baker, tells it this way: "While working at my desk in the express car, my subconscious mind told me there was some one in the car besides myself. So, along between Toyah and Pecos, I decided I would thoroughly examine a certain large box. I had that queer feeling that some one was looking at me, though I was alone in the car and nobody in sight."

He opened the box and found young Baker, exhausted, his bottles of drinking water empty. Baker, by the way, expressed himself to an uncle as a "surprise."

We doubt if any of our readers hasn't had a similar experience verging on telepathy. How many times have you turned in a crowd, uncomfortably conscious that some one was staring at you?

If this doesn't demonstrate "radio thought" how do you explain it?

Maybe you've walked with a friend in silence for some minutes. Then you started whistling—and, at the very same instant, your friend burst forth with the same tune. Again we have a demonstration of telepathy or some other mysterious force that links subconscious minds and carries communications between them.

Or take the case of two intimate friends or a husband and wife "well mated." Frequently they exclaim, a bit bewilderedly: "What you said was on the tip of my tongue." These people also are so telepathically in tune with each other that they carry on a complicated conversation in so few words that an outsider wouldn't get the drift at all.

Will the eventual language be silence—thought transference? It doesn't seem as "supernatural" as before we had radio.

BRILLIANT.

Dyes, injected in North Carolina trees at the roots, are drawn up and saturate the whole tree. In 10 days, the tree is cut down—and the lumber is embalmed with permanent colors that cannot even be boiled or steamed out.

It's a clever idea, and it will help the imitators of mahogany and other expensive furniture. Some one will make a lot of money out of the process. There are millions of such opportunities waiting for the eyes that can see them.

Minneapolis Tribune: Normal Democrats have their differences with Calvin Coolidge on the tariff and other economic questions, but as between Coolidge and LaFollette, or Coolidge and Bryan,—which amounts to much the same thing—they surely must prefer to place their trust in Coolidge.

Manufacturers Record: Nominally, Senator Robert M. LaFollette is an independent candidate for President of the United States. Actually, he is the personification of the world Communist movement which is working to foment a bloody revolution in this country.

Detroit Free Press: The impatience which LaFollette manifests whenever things fail to go his way, should warn the country that an incipient dictator is running for the Presidency.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Clive Roberts Barton

THE KING OF YUM YUM LAND

"I'm hungry," he said to his prime minister.

The king of Yum Yum Land was, once, hungry.

He had had breakfast at eight o'clock; a large cantaloupe, a plate of ham and eggs, a dish of rolled oats and cream, five pieces of toast and marmalade and four cups of coffee.

For luncheon at one he had had a plate of soup, a fish, a whole fried chicken, two helpings of mashed potatoes, six ears of corn tomato and cucumber and asparagus and sweet pepper salad, and a plate of ice cream with crushed cherries all over it and sprinkled with nuts, and I don't know what all.

Now it was three o'clock and he was hungry.

"I'm hungry," he said to his prime minister. "I'm very hungry. In fact, I'm half starved."

The prime minister said to the lord high counselor, "The king's hungry. He's very hungry. In fact he's half starved. You'd better do something."

The lord high counselor said to the lord chamberlain, "The king's hungry. He's very hungry. In fact he's half starved. You'd better do something. Please see to it at once."

The lord chamberlain said to the lord mayor that the king was hungry and all the rest of it.

And at four o'clock it reached the ears of the cook who was just sending in a tray of crumpets and tea to his Majesty the King.

"Crumpets and tea!" he said in dismay, "will never do for a starving king. It's four hours to dinner and I haven't a thing in the house. What shall I do? I'll lose my job as cook if I don't find something wonderful at once."

Just then a peddler passed the kitchen door calling out, "Fine wares to sell! Fine wares to sell! Please come and buy! Fine wares to sell!"

"Be off with you!" cried the cook. "I've troubles enough as it is. His Majesty is starving to death and here I am with nothing but crumpets and tea in the house and four hours till dinner."

"Oh, but look!" whined the beggar. "I have the very thing you want. An old thin fork and a teapot of the same stuff."

"Be off!" cried the cook. "An old bent fork that looks as though it had been used for pitching hay! And an old teakettle that looks as though the highest office it had ever performed was to melt the ice on the butcher's pavement. Be off, I say."

"Not so fast! Not so fast!" said the beggar. "These things are not to be judged by appearance. They will save you work and I only want to do you a favor. Hide me in the palace and they are yours for nothing. Both are magic and will bring you any kind of meat or drink by merely saying a charm. To the teapot say:

"Go do your best, go do your worst, Or teapot, dear, I'll die of thirst."

"To the fork say: "Oh, magic fork, I'd like a treat. Please see what you can find to eat."

"Whatever you wish for as you say these words will be yours at once."

"Be off!" cried the cook. "An old bent fork that looks as though it had been used for pitching hay! And an old teakettle that looks as though the highest office it had ever performed was to melt the ice on the butcher's pavement. Be off, I say."

"Not so fast! Not so fast!" said the beggar. "These things are not to be judged by appearance. They will save you work and I only want to do you a favor. ## The Tangle

With Jack and Karl came dad's lawyer, and we all assembled in the library to hear the will read. At this time Alice made her first appearance among us since we had returned from the funeral. Poor child, she looked as though she had had a serious illness, and I felt so sorry for her that I went up and put my arms around her.

I haven't told you, Ruth, that we had quite a disturbance when Karl and Alice first arrived, and Jack told her that father had made him his executor and manager of the plant. Of course, after everything else, the quarrel got back to the pearls and I gave them back to her and told Karl before Jack and Alice, that I could not keep my promise to him; that I had never been happy with them, and I could never again wear them, knowing how Alice felt about them.

So you see I have gotten rid of at least one thing that might bring me discord and unhappiness, but I'm somewhat afraid that I've only passed them with all their dire import over to Alice and Karl; for Karl reproved Alice before us all, and it nearly broke her heart.

She was very subdued through the long legal announcements made by the lawyer in reading the will. It was exactly as Jack had told us, except that it was couched in legal phrases. Dad gave to mother for life the income from his entire real estate; and a third of the income from his personal property and investments as long as she should live. The income from the other two-thirds is to be divided equally between Alice, myself, and little John, and John is made executor without bond.

Both of us started when this item was read, and Jack turned pale, for dad had not told him that part of his bequest. I thought at first Alice was going to remonstrate, but Karl put his hand gently over hers and she was silent.

At the death of mother, her share is to be divided equally between Alice and me.

It's a strange thing, Ruth dear, how destiny has worked out the fate of little Jack. I am exceedingly glad that my father loved the boy well enough to insure his education and start in life, whatever any one else might do for him. Each day, now, as I know that another child is coming to me, my love grows greater for the boy I chose. I love him for my husband's sake; I love him in spite of my husband's sin. I love him because I chose him out of the world of little homeless and motherless ones, and I think I can say that that is as great a love as a mother has even for a child that is hers because she bore it.

Oh, I know a great many people will think I am crazy to say this, but nevertheless each day I find that it is true in my case. I am eagerly waiting until my other child is born to see if nature will make any difference between the child of my body and the child of my choice.

There is much more I want to tell you, Ruth. There is much to be settled, of course, about the shop and other things. However, I will not come back with John immediately, as I hate to leave mother here alone. Alice at this time seems too much absorbed in her own unhappiness and sorrow to be of much comfort to her. However, I am going to have a talk with Jack before he returns, and then I will write you. Until then, remember dear, you are my best friend.

HOW THE TARIFF AFFECTS THE FARMER

Commenting upon oft repeated charges that the existing tariff is "an act to increase the price of what the farmer buys and to reduce the price of what he sells" and declarations that the "tariff exploits the farmer again as a buyer of tools, fertilizers and supplies for the farm," precisely the reverse of this is true.

"MILEAGE"

By Mrs. C. G. Shepherd

Are the people of Illinois a thinking people? Are we true Americans? Our nation was born of the liberty and democratic government. We have the right and power through our votes, to translate "government" by the people for the people, into living facts.

When man first made his start along the winding pathway of history, he was not an impressive figure. The contact of men with men and the fact, forces, laws and resources of nature, and the co-operation that grows out of contact is civilization.

In one particular man was unique. It took all his time and energy to obtain food, shelter and covering for himself and family. He was endowed with reason, inventive and creative instinct. He had an irresistible inner impulse to make things, to build something, to go somewhere, in order to find something to bring back with him. He wanted to get ahead.

Bishop Phillips Brooks says, "Sad will be the day for every man when he becomes absolutely contented with the thoughts that he is thinking, with the deeds that he is doing, when there is not beating at his soul some great desire to do something larger, which he knows that he was made to do, because he is the Child of God."

Through hitching his mind and his muscle together he began to make progress. And his progress was measured by the growth of his ability to use the energies and forces of the world about him. A creative force.

At this point there was born the science of transportation, and it has ever since been a factor in all real progress.

Think of a wheel. What a discovery and invention. We do not know how, when or where it happened. But we do know that the first time it was put under a human burden a wonderful mechanical civilization was born. There has always been a real connection between transportation and progress.

The most prosperous, progressive and civilized people, associating kindred minds for joy and progress, conductive to their highest unfoldment, have the best systems of transportation.

Take our transportation systems away from us and see how quickly trade would die. Nations would dissolve and man would soon fall below most animal creation, and at the tail end of the great procession, where he had begun.

From paths, trails, dirt roads, railroads and cement highways, the gradual and almost original enthusiasm of the people of working out the solution of their common problems of providing adequate transportation. The highest idea is the cement road or highway to connect the city with the country or in other words the consumer with the producer.

What are the people of the nation talking about today? Let us take them in groups, the Railway Smoker Group, a City Club Group, a Saturday evening Farmer Group, the political group, and the Newspaper Group. The main topic? Not the great convention of the presidential candidates, or the Klan, or the Farm bloc, or the Pot, or the Child Labor, or Bonus, or Taxes, or Dawes plan, or Ball Games, or Army World Fights, or Murder trials, or a woman governor. All were mentioned to be sure but the universal subject, "Mileage." How roads effect driving costs. Car Mileage, Gas, Oil, Tires and Battery mileage.

Gov. Len Small, a little name but a big man with the groups, big because he has had the courage to take our big burdens and show us an easy way to bear them.

Gov. Small the state's 26th executive is a native of this state.

Did you know that Kentucky claims to be the mother of Illinois governors? That the State Historical Library shows that seven Illinois governors were born in Kentucky. Only three were born in Illinois: Gov. Yates, Gov. Deneen and Gov. Small. Three were born in Virginia, four in New York, two in Pennsylvania, two in Maryland, one in New Hampshire, one in Ohio and one in Germany. Did you know it took an Illinois product to do the really worth while job for its people. One with a courageous faith to triumph over criticism and tauderous false findings.

Our grandmothers used to say of some people that they could not see beyond their noses. How far can you see beyond your nose? Whom are you blaming for false accusations? When things go wrong is it a common practice to blame some one.

The "Would be Powers" cannot go on forever with their tricks of so called investigating committees, and pass the buck (so to speak) and get away with it. It does not take long for the people to become uneasy and see things as they are.

Our hope for the improvement of our state, rests on the active participation of thinking men and women. If we do not vote, we are disloyal to ourselves our children, and our country. The man or woman who stays away from the polls on election day is encouraging misgovernment.

The non-voter is a real problem to our country. And the best solution is for every one to vote. The first step is to register, party or no party, register and vote. Even if your vote counts as a protest, make it count.

According to statistics covering the election of 1920 ninety per cent of the mothers of the wealthy people of this country went to the polls and voted, while the mothers of our working class were indifferent and only fifty seven per cent of them voted.

Majorities rule in this country. So the working people have been out of luck. Of course our men shy at the polls sometimes, but that does not excuse the mothers. The mothers who are so interested in the child welfare, the teacher, the nurse, the minister, the judge. You must all go to the polls and vote wisely.

Let's make the fall of 1924 a big vote, from the viewpoint of the working class, and that includes the most of us, there has never been a candidate so fitted to serve as Hon. Gov. Small.

Vote for the one hundred million dollar bond issue. Go in debt and make money. It is a growing practice. We Illinoisans are getting to be remarkably skilled in finance. This sort of knowledge educated people out of poverty. If we call it obligation instead of debt it loses its terrors. It's as easy to grow dollars as it is to plant and harvest the crops.

Gov. Small has shown the people how to get all the good roads the people need and with a network of good roads we will net greater profits and greater pleasure.

Let us urge every voter, use your influence, every one has some influence with some one else. Let's all vote.

Women do not need to lose their dignity and sweetness by going to the polls. There is so much beauty in being just a womanly woman. Let us be loyal to the coming generation and be just what God intended us to be, true patriotic citizens.

Do not set up a standard of religious faith or racial origin. Know that each candidate that you vote for is an honest, competent person, willing to be faithful to the constitution.

Here are a few don'ts: Don't Knock—the government if you did not vote at last election.

Don't Knock—the church, if you are doing nothing to support it.

Don't Knock—your friends if you have betrayed their confidence.

Don't Knock—your town if you have been letting some one else do it.

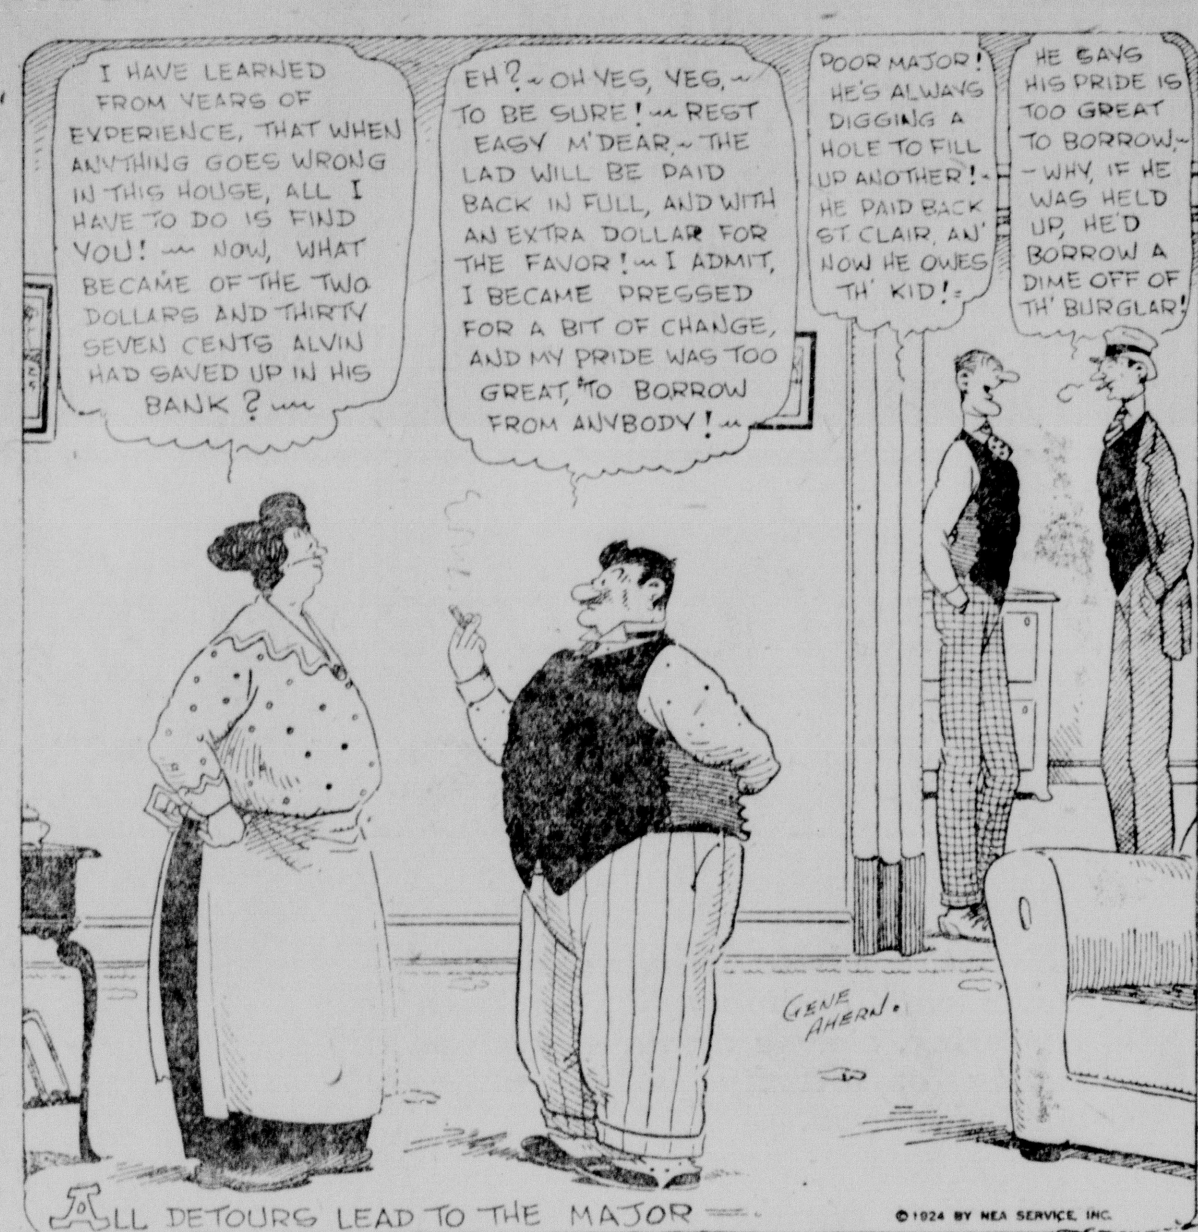

Don't Knock—the rich if you have always been a spendthrift.

Don't Knock—your firm or employer if you've been loafing on the job.

Don't Knock—the police if you have not been reporting law breaking.

last spring. I am not holding a state office and I did not receive compensation. There was an unusual appeal to me to work in the cause of right. I have ambition and energy. And being a friend to the entire Small family which is the best in the state or United States or the whole world for that matter, I felt it a great privilege and opportunity to exercise my citizenship.

In conclusion I also wish to impress on your minds that I have no particular district, county, community or favorite locality in which I have any choice for the expenditure of the state's money for road building. I would like to see the highway funds distributed all over the state of Illinois in every community, and where it will benefit all the people, and above all things placed in the jurisdiction of a man who will see to it that we get a dollar's worth of hard road for every dollar we trust him to spend.

Gov. Small has already proven to us that he can do these things, and can do it again if we come out to the polls and show him that we are willing to practice what we preach.

Circuit Judge Harry Edwards and State's Attorney Mark C. Keller gave short talks and most of the county candidates were present. The school orchestra gave several pleasing numbers. Dreams about the teeth often oc-

But these dreams are often omens of good. For instance, if your teeth appear white and sound, joy and prosperity is denoted.

On the other hand, if they are de-cayed, loss of fortune is foreseen. If you dream you lose a tooth, beware, for you may lose friends or a lover.
An extra long one may mean that you are to quarrel with relatives.

To dream of eating peas well

Business and love are often represented in dreams of boats and water

Interpretations

If you are dancing joyously with a friend, there will be happiness and love. If dancing vulgarly, pleasure will overcome discretion.

If you are digging a ditch, you are making trouble for yourself.

Falling denotes something unfavorable, failure or disaster.

If you fight with others, side-step quarrels in love or business. If you overcome opponents, you will be victorious over your enemies.

If in a sea wreck be prepared for disastrous experiences.

Insects, reptiles, fish, etc., which come crawling into your dreams, are usually favorable signs.

There are a few exceptions, which indicate small troubles. The appearance of ants forecast achievement through industry, while the buzzing of a bee brings a message of profit and increase.

The snake, always dreaded, may be a favorable sign to the dreamer, for it may awaken him to the fact that he has shown ingratitude and plenty, with good luck and pleasant occupations.

OGLE COUNTY FARM BUREAU ACTIVITIES

Oregon—How much improvement may be expected in the yield and quality of corn in one year's time by careful selection of the seed?

This question will be answered and demonstrated on eight Ogle County farms on Thursday, November 6, when the Ogle County Farm Bureau is to hold a corn plot demonstration tour.

These corn plot demonstrations, says Farm Adviser, D. E. Warren, are for the purpose of checking up on the value of seed corn culling such as was advocated in several meetings held throughout the county in the spring.

Eight farmers in the county have planted a few rows through their fields from ears selected from their own seed corn, according to characteristics which are said to favor high yields, through maturing and resistance to diseases. The yields in these plots are to compare with the yields from the unselected seed by husking and weighing the corn from equal areas in each. The husked corn will also be compared for type and quality.

Mr. Warren states that starting at 8 o'clock from the Farm Bureau office at Oregon on Thursday morning

November 6, an auto tour will be made to visit all of the plots to see the results that have been obtained in this experiment, and that anyone who is interested in this work is very welcome to go on the tour.

This is considered one of the important projects of the Farm Bureau for this year for it bears directly upon the problem of economy in profitable farming.

CAPTAIN BLOOD

By RAFAEL SABATINI

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini.
"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitaphone picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, is sent to the Barbadoes as a slave under orders of King James. He is bought by Colonel Bishop, military commander, and meets Arabella Bishop, his niece, with whom he falls in love. Spentards under Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez capture the town. Blood saves Mary Trill and Arabella and captures the Spanish ship. Don Diego betrays him and sails the vessel under the guns of his brother's ship of Hispaniola. Blood tricks the Spanish admiral, and sails for Tortuga, the rendezvous of buccanniers of the Spanish Main. There the buccanniers prevail on him, aided by the governor, M. d'Ogeron, to equip the Conco Llagas as a privateer. He meets Levasseur, a French ruffian, who has his own ship. Levasseur enlists under Blood. The Frenchman is in love with d'Ogeron's daughter Madelon, whom the governor has sent to Europe on board a Dutch brig. She appeals to Levasseur, who has attracted her romantic heart, to rescue her.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued

In answer, the half-caste pointed out beyond the frothing surf that marked the position of the reef constituting one of the stronghold's main defenses. Away beyond it, a mile or so distant, a sail was standing out to sea.

"There she go," he said.

The Frenchman gazed and stared. The half-caste shrank terrified before his fury. "Then up anchor, and let us after the Dutchman," he cried.

"Steady, captain. What's that?" There was a restraining hand upon his shoulder, and the broad face of his lieutenant scowled, a burly, callous Breton scoundrel, was stolidly confronting him. "A Dutch brig!" said he. "Impossible! We should never be allowed."

"And who the devil will deny us?" Levasseur was between amazement and fury.

"For one thing, there's your own crew will be none too willing. For another, there's Captain Blood."

"I care nothing for Captain Blood."

"But it is necessary that you should. He has the power, the weight of metal and of men, and if I know him at all, he'll sink us before he'll suffer interference with the Dutch. He has his own views of privateering, this Captain Blood, as I warned you."

Cursing in his soul, and even before the anchor was weighed, the association into which he had entered, he was already studying ways of evasion. What Cahusac implied was true: Blood would never suffer violence to be done in his presence to a Dutchman. But he might be done in his absence; and, being done, Blood must perforce condone it, since it would then be too late to protest.

Within the hour the Arabella and La Foudre were beating out to sea together. Without understanding the change of plan involved, Captain Blood, nevertheless, accepted it, and weighed anchor before the appointed time upon perceiving his associate to do so.

All day the Dutch brig was in sight, though by evening she had dwindled to the merest speck on the northern horizon. The course prescribed for Blood and Levasseur lay eastward along the northern shores of Hispaniola. To that course the Arabella continued to hold steadily throughout the night. When day broke again she was alone. La Foudre under cover of the darkness had struck away to the northeast with every rag of canvas on her yards.

Cahusac had attempted yet again to protest against this.

"The devil take you!" Levasseur had answered him. "A ship's a ship, be she Dutch or Spanish, and ships are our present need. That will suffice for the men."

Dawn found La Foudre close on the Dutchman's heels, not a mile astern, and the sight of her very evidently flustered the Jongvrouw. They sent a warning shot across her bow. The Jongvrouw veered, showed them her rudder, and opened fire with her stern chasers. The small shot went whistling through La Foudre's shrouds with some slight damage to her canvas.

Five minutes after that they were aboard and board, the Jongvrouw held tight in the clutches of La Foudre's grapples, and the buccanniers pouring noisily into her waist.

The Dutchman's master, purple in the face, stood forward to beard the pirate, followed closely by an elegant, pale-faced young gentleman in whom Levasseur recognized his brother-in-law elect.

"Captain Levasseur, this is an outrage for which you shall be made to answer. What do you seek aboard my ship?"

"At first I sought only that which belongs to me, something of which I am being robbed. But since you chose war and opened fire on me with some damage to my ship and loss of life to five of my men, war it is, and your ship a prize of war."

From the quarter rail Mademoiselle d'Ogeron looked down with glowing eyes in breathless wonder upon her well-beloved hero. Gloriously heroic he seemed as he stood towering there, masterful, audacious, beautiful. He saw her, and with a glad shout sprang towards her. The Dutch master got in his way with hands upheld to arrest his progress. Levasseur did not stay to argue with him; he was too impatient to reach his mistress. He swung the poleaxe that he carried, and the Dutchman went down in blood with a cloven skull. The eager lover stepped across the body and came on his countenance joyously alight. But mademoiselle was shrinking now, in horror, in a bound her well-beloved was beside her. But she still shrank even within his embrace, which would not be denied a look of dread had come to temper the normal arrogance of her almost perfect face.

"Why, why did you kill him?" He laughed as a hero should; and answered her heroically, with the tolerance of a god for the mortal to whom he condescends: "He stood between us. Let his death be a symbol, a warning. Let all who would stand between us mark it and beware."

It was so splendidly terrific, the gesture of it was so broad and fine and his magnanimity so compelling, that she cast her silly tremors and yielded herself freely, intoxicated, to his fond embrace. Thereafter he swung her to his shoulder, and stepping with ease beneath that burden, bore her in a sort of triumph, lustily cheered by his men, to the deck of his own ship. Her inconsiderate brother might have ruined that romantic scene but for the watchful Cahusac, who quietly tripped him up, and then trussed him like a fowl.

Thereafter, what time the Captain languished in his lady's smile within the cabin, Cahusac was dealing with the spoils of war. The Dutch crew was ordered into the longboat, and bidden go to the devil. Fortunately, as they numbered fewer than thirty, the longboat, though perilously overcrowded, could yet contain them. Next, Cahusac having inspected the cargo, put the quartermaster and a score of men aboard the Jongvrouw, and left her to follow La Foudre, which he now headed south for the Leeward Islands.

The lady's brother was presently conducted to the cabin. The Captain rose to receive him, bending his stalwart height to avoid striking the cabin roof with his head. Mademoiselle rose, too.

"Why this?" she asked Levasseur, pointing to her brother's pained wrists.

"I deplore it," said he. "I desire it to end. Let M. d'Ogeron give me his parole."

"I give you nothing."

"Hear! this is foolish! You are not behaving as my brother. You are."

"Little fool. Don't you perceive your wicked folly in the harm it has brought already? Lives have been lost—men have died—that this monster might overtake you. And don't you yet realize where you stand—in the power of this beast, of this car born in a kennel and bred in thieving and murder?"

He might have said more but that Levasseur struck him across the mouth. Mademoiselle suppressed a scream, as the youth staggered back under the blow.

"You see," he said simply. "He strikes a man whose hands are bound."

NEWS FROM DIXON

UNKNOWN MAN IS KILLED BY CARS NEAR MORRISON

Butterfly, Tattooed on Arm, Only Clue to His Identity.

Morrison—Without a single hint as to his identification, the body of an unknown man, apparently about 35 years of age, was found on the west bound track of the North-western railroad, about 12 rail lengths west of the Dykema crossing, when section workers were going to their labors about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The matter was reported at once and the body removed to the morgue of R. A. Reynolds. Mr. Reynolds is of the opinion that the man met his death previous to midnight. No train crews have any knowledge of such an accident occurring, so it is possible that the man may have fallen from a passing train. The victim was crushed so that it would be difficult to identify the corpse from its features, and the left foot was cut off below the knee.

A gold crowned tooth in the lower jaw, with one in the upper jaw having a gold inlay on one of its corners, and a butterfly tattooed on one of his arms give perhaps the best chances of identification to be had. No labels of any kind appeared on the clothing which was that of a laboring man. The hair of the victim was medium brown, freely sprinkled with gray, and appearances would indicate the age of the man to be about 35.

There was no money on his person. A short broken section of an aluminum comb, two very grimy towels and about a half can of canned meat and a section torn from a Chicago Herald Examiner of recent date, was all that could be found. The clipping dealt with the activities of the Russian "Reds" and was about two columns in length, showing that for some reason or another the story must have made its particular appeal to the man. His shoes appeared to have been half-soled very recently with one of the substitutes for leather now on the market.

DAVIS STRIKES AT TARIFF ACT IN THIRD PLEA

Says Underwood Act Only Just Tariff in History of U. S.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, Oct. 30.—The third statement prepared by John W. Davis, democratic candidate for president, for the purpose of summing up campaign issues was made public today. It was confined exclusively to a discussion of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill which the candidate has declared will be re-written if he is elected and is given the support of a democratic congress.

In renewing his promise for lower schedules, Mr. Davis made it clear he had harbored no resentment toward legitimate business fairly conducted but would "withdraw the invitation extended in the form of exorbitant rates of duty, to profit through monopolistic control of production, markets and prices."

The statement follows in part: "I believe the Fordney-McCumber bill is wrong. Those profligate by it are enjoying an unjust exaction. The owners of a few industries may enjoy undue prosperity, but the public must pay the bill."

"The Fordney-McCumber bill was both a fence and an offense. It was a fence against normal trade with other nations and it was offense against consumers in the United States and especially against farmers. Claims Only Just Tariff

"The democratic Underwood-Simmons bill was the only tariff since the Civil War to be passed without suspicion of unfairness or partiality. Under it industry flourished and employment grew."

"The Fordney-McCumber act has inflicted hardship and sacrifice upon all the people of the United States."

"It is this law that the republican administration pledged itself to maintain. The democratic party proposes to reform the tariff by revising downward the existing duties to a truly competitive basis and fully eliminating all favoritism and the evils that flow from it."

"We do not propose any ruthless and vindictive slashing of rates to gratify political animosities or class antagonism. We propose to permit competition effective enough to stimulate enterprise, to prevent monopoly and to discourage obsolete or impractical processes and equipment, or bad management, indolence, waste or neglect."

"We have no resentment, but only friendliness toward legitimate business fairly conducted; but we do intend to withdraw the invitation extended in the form of exorbitant rates of duty to profit through monopolistic control of production, markets and prices."

LaFollette-Wheeler Campaign Here Ended

Locally, the LaFollette-Wheeler campaign came to a close last evening with the final meeting which was held in the circuit court room, at which time Hon. Henry Huber of Stoughton, Wis., was the speaker.

The progressive regime and era in Wisconsin was lauded highly by the speaker, who told of the legislation that had been enacted in that state through this party's persistent efforts. The speaker was former executive secretary for LaFollette and is now a candidate for the office of lieutenant governor of Wisconsin without opposition on the Republican ticket.

BASKETBALL IS MOST POPULAR SCHOOL SPORT

Track Second, Football Third, H. S. Reports Show.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
DeKalb, Ill.—More than 70,000 high school pupils took part in competitive athletics under the auspices of the Illinois High School athletic association last year, according to estimates made by C. W. Whitten, manager of the association, from a questionnaire sent to all members of the association.

Basketball, according to the estimates, was by far the most popular sport, 27,225 students participating, while track was second, attracting 11,321 athletes. Football was third with a total of 5,293 students participating and baseball fifth, with a total of 6,960 participants.

Tennis was favored by 3,565 and 12,329 took part in minor sports, not listed in the questionnaire under separate classifications. M. Whitten estimated that a total of 71,997 took part in sports during the year. The questionnaire was sent to all of the 714 members and therefore excluded Chicago high schools and several down state high schools. Only 314 schools replied, but by classifying all of the members by enrollment, and applying the averages obtained from the questionnaires, which were classified in the same manner, the totals were obtained.

The response to the questionnaire was not general enough to warrant any claim of infallibility. Mr. Whitten said, "but the results obtained were very revealing and I believe that our results may be accepted as approximately correct, without doing any violence to statistical methods."

The figures showed that football tended to become more generally popular as the size of the school increased.

In the face of a varied attack Malone was on the defensive throughout the match. The champion launched a fierce assault in the last round which almost swept the St. Paul boxer off his feet.

PRACTICAL AND CONSTRUCTIVE IS RECORD OF SMALL

Candidacy Based Upon More Than Political Exigencies.

The candidacy of Governor Len Small is based on something more than the exigencies of party politics. While it is true that he is the nominee of the dominant political party in the state, nominated by an overwhelming vote in a popular primary of that party, his candidacy appeals to those who have no particular interest in partisan policies.

The outstanding achievements of Small's administration are economic. His vigor in pushing the work of road building has added millions to the actual wealth of the state, and other millions to the value of its immediate prospects.

It is impossible to say how many figures can be attached to the estimate of Illinois' wealth, by reason of the roads that have been constructed under his direction. But no one can overlook the worth of this practical utility, or fail to be impressed with what its extension and completion promises.

Though public welfare work is not usually classed as a contributing factor to the wealth of the state, but rather as an expense, it is literally true that Governor Small's administration of public charities has served as an economic factor.

Small, early in his public work, had opportunity to observe the needs of state wards. As one of the trustees of the Kankakee hospital located in his home town, he was intimately associated with the solution of numerous difficult problems, and the knowledge there gained has served him, and the state, in reaching early and correct decisions where his aid has been sought by officers of the institution and the department.

There has been, under this administration, remarkable development of the Illinois system of caring for, correcting and rehabilitating those who become state charges under the operation of the criminal laws.

In carrying out the comprehensive features of the indeterminate sentence law, the welfare department has been given every encouragement by Governor Small. He has, too, given invaluable service to the cause of good government by courageously interfering to prevent misuse of the criminal law for political purposes.

Small has made a success of his administration under the most discouraging circumstances. He has been the target for political and personal persecution unprecedented. The harassments instigated by powerful business interests bent on forcing him to do their will, have been without

Democrat on Trial for Part in Big Mail Theft

By Associated Press Leased Wire
St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 30.—Taking testimony in the trial of William P. "Dinty" Colbeck, local democrat politician, charged with complicity in the mail truck holdup here, April 2, 1923, when $260,000 in negotiable bonds and unsigned federal farm loan notes of $2,200,000 were stolen, began in federal court here today.

Ten others, including Walter A. Kelly, a local attorney, are jointly indicted with Colbeck.

Most of the loot taken in the holdup was recovered at the suburban home of Charles "Whitey" Doering, who was sentenced to forty years in connection with the holdup. Doering was slain in a road house near Johnston City, Illinois, last winter, while he was out on bond pending his appeal from the sentence. Sam Weisman is now serving a 25 year sentence at Atlanta in connection with the holdup while three others who were charged with complicity have been killed since.

John Dummeyer, a local stock broker, pleaded guilty to an indictment yesterday in connection with the holdup, but his sentence was deferred until Monday.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN
By BEAUNASH
Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

What Sort of Sweater?

Some microscopic minds make no end of consequence about inconsequential subjects, such as how many liver pads are worn in Patagonia; where does Sunday spend Monday and what becomes of your lap when you stand up. It is the same type of man who purses lips, contracts eyebrows, points a solemn forefinger and demands to know whether the coat-style sweater or the pull-over, or the V-neck or the round-neck, or the plain or the plaid is the only correct thing to wear. The answer is, "Yes!" Seriously, however, fashion does not concern itself with these things. They are matters of particular preference and individual becomingness, not of fixed rule.

Put on any sort of sweater that you look well in, and you practice the fundamental rule of smartness which is—make the most of your gifts and the least of your shortcomings. Don't become a slave to style for style's sake. Don't confuse mere fashion with correct dress. The two are allied, but not identical. Choose all your clothes with an eye to what favors and flatters you as an individual. Adopt the things which are suited to your figure and type. Avoid the things which are better suited to somebody else. No man, unless so extraordinarily endowed physically, that he is a composite of a Romeo and an Apollo—which no sensible person wants to be—can wear every style pleasingly and effectively. Selective discrimination, and nothing else, makes some of us better-dressed than others.

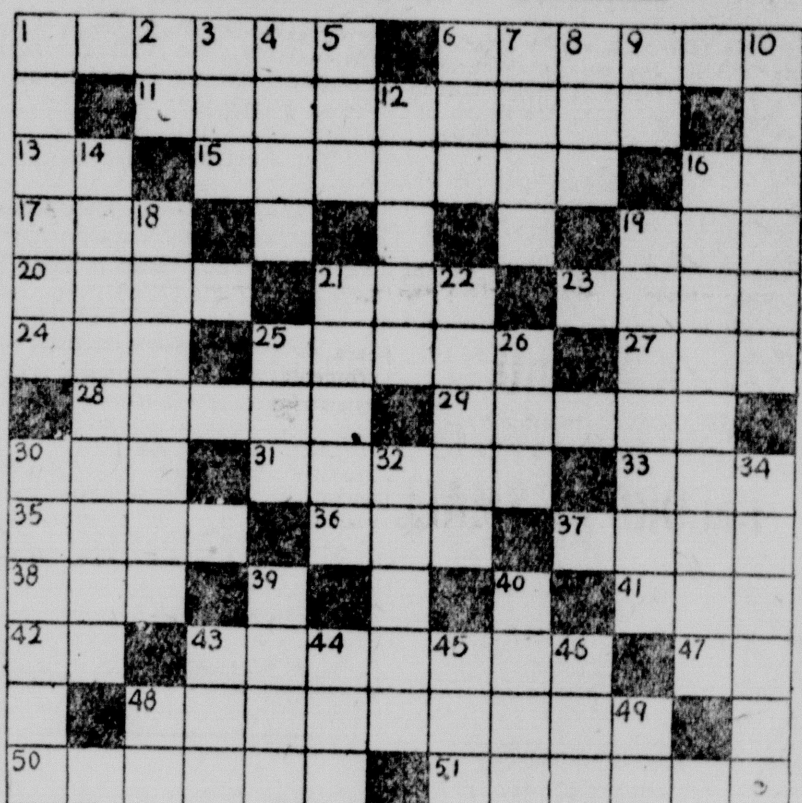

The knitted sweater, reproduced here, is one of the many types to be had this season—with round necks, V-necks or even square necks; with plaid bodies and plain sleeves or with both of the same pattern; with solid-shade necks or with necks, sleeves and bottom edges embellished with bold stripes in college, club or regimental colors.

So all-important has the once humble sweater become as a feature of outdoor and sporting dress, that it is not infrequent for a well-dressed man to have half-a-dozen of them to accompany different outfits.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Expenditures by the railroad brotherhoods on behalf of the LaFollette-Whelan ticket will form one phase of the inquiry into campaign costs which is to be conducted here by the senate campaign fund investigating sub-committee under the direction of Senator Borah of Idaho.

A request for the summoning of Warren S. Stone of the locomotive engineers organization and L. E. Sheppard, president of the conductors organization has been made to the sub-committee by Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for the republican committee.

Senator Borah and his colleague Senator Shinnick are due here today from Washington and will get the investigation re-underway as quickly as possible.

The Affair at Flower Acres

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Douglas Raynor is found shot through the heart in the early evening on the floor of the sun room of Flower Acres, his Long Island home. Standing over the dead man, pistol in hand, is Malcolm Finley, former sweetheart of Raynor's wife, Nancy. Eva Turner, Raynor's nurse, stands by the light switch. In a moment Nancy appears, white-faced and terrified. Orville Kent, Nancy's brother, comes in from the south side of the room. And then Ezra Goddard, friend of Finley; Miss Mattie, Raynor's sister, and others, enter upon the scene. Detective Dobbins heads the police investigation. An autopsy reveals that Raynor also was being systematically poisoned with arsenic. Dobbins makes to arrest Nancy, and Finley "concooses" to shield her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Not much it doesn't!" Dobbins returned. "The truth is, to put it plainly, one of those people shot Mr. Raynor. Both know which one did it. Neither will tell, unless if one confesses, then the other will. If Mrs. Raynor fired the shot, then Mr. Finley picked up the pistol afterward, and rubbed off her fingerprints. If, on the other hand, the shot was fired by Mr. Finley—Mrs. Raynor saw him as she stood at the west door. But they both know."

"This is discarding the theories of Miss Turner or of an intruder from outside," Ezra Goddard summed up thoughtfully.

"Yes, sir, and I do discard them. I've thought over that nurse, but she never would have shot and then turned on the lights. In the dusk she would have run away."

"You can't affirm that so positively," Kent said; "nor can you give up the idea of an outsider merely because I didn't see him make his getaway. Of course he would have disappeared silently and in the darkness of the shrubbery, and I'd stand small chance of seeing him at all."

Dobbins looked uncertain again. The man seemed to have little initiative—yet he was rated a good detective. But as he said this, this case presented so many possibilities, had so many sides to it, and Dobbins was an earnest inquirer rather than a brilliant deducer.

"I've got to interview more people," he sighed as he rose. "But I know where to go for information. I'm going for some now—and if I'm not mistaken, it will throw some light on a few dark points."

Sanguine of nature, the detective went off and went straightway to the home of Dolly Fay.

That young person sat in a swing on the lawn, and with a word of greeting Dobbins sat down beside her.

"Now, young lady," he said, trying to intimidate her by a fierce scowl, "you are to tell me all you are keeping back about Mrs. Raynor. If you don't, you'll be in danger yourself."

"Danger? How come?" and the slangy child snapped her little fingers in the detective's face.

This flippancy irritated the arm of the law, and he scowled harder at her.

"Be careful, Miss. Have you ever heard of contempt of court?"

"No—what's it mean?"

"It means that if you treat lightly the inquiries of a detective you are liable to fine and imprisonment."

Dobbins found it unnecessary to take strong measures with this difficult child.

"Oo! I see 'twould! But though Dolly pretended flippancy, Dobbins could see she was seriously disturbed."

"And so," he followed up his advantage, "unless you see fit to tell me whatever I ask you, I shall have to report you—"

"What do you want to know?" the question was snapped at him.

"You were with Mrs. Raynor when she threw a parcel into the Falls?"

"Yes; that was only a bit of rubbish."

"Why did she take the trouble to carry it to the Falls to dispose of it?"

"Oh, it wasn't any trouble. We were out for a walk, you know—"

"Had you ever seen that parcel before?"

Dolly was game.

"No," she said, stubbornly, "I never saw it before."

Dolly was unaccustomed to lying, unaccustomed, also, to being questioned by a detective, and, as she spoke the untrue words, her red lips quivered and she burst into tears.

"Go away!" she cried.

"Wait a minute, Miss Fay. Try to realize that for you to tell the truth will help Mrs. Raynor more than for you to conceal anything."

"What do you mean by that? I don't believe you! Take me to Mrs. Raynor, then, and if she gives me she threw a parcel into the Falls?"

"Yes; that was only a bit of rubbish."

heard the hum of their voices but paid no heed.

At last, satisfied with her examination of the specimen, she turned to leave the room, when a word or two from the men on the porch caught her ear.

"We're lucky to be rid of the nurse," Lionel was saying, "she could have made trouble. I made her see it was best for her to go—and go quickly."

"That's all right," Gannon said, grumblingly. "But what about me? When do I get mine?"

"What's your everlasting hurry?" asked Lionel. "You've enough to live on—haven't you?"

"Yes; but I don't trust you, especially, and besides I want to get my bundle and go to South America. It's long been the dream of my life to study tropical insects down there. You fixed off the Turner woman, why can't you fix off me?"

"I will as soon as it's possible. I hate to seem in too much of a hurry to take possession. And—I'm sorry for Mrs. Raynor—"

"Boh! If you get hit there—"

"Not at all—it isn't that. But I don't—I can't believe Mrs. Raynor shot Dad—and if she didn't—"

"If she didn't, who did? That lover of hers—Finley. It has to be one of the two—you know that, Lionel."

"What about Peters?"

"He's all right—gone to California."

"Well—I'll fix up the financial matters as soon as I can, Gannon—but don't hurry me. Where's the—the—you know?"

"It's all right."

"Haven't you destroyed it yet?"

"When you meet my demands—I'll consider yours."

"Oh, you shlock! I tell you I'll fix things as soon as I can."

"Don't worry. It's all safe—"

"And the other?"

"Safe, too."

"Well, so long. I'll go right now to see Lawyer Stratton. But I wish I knew who killed Dad."

"You're mighty affectionate toward his memory—considering how he treated you when he was alive!"

"I can forget that, if I have all his property. And, I tell you a fellow can't see his father murdered in cold blood without getting hot about it!"

Lionel Raynor went away, and Dolly Fay, scenting a new mystery, felt it would be better for her to depart unnoticed.

She accordingly slipped out at the back door of Gannon's little house, and went a roundabout way so that the old man shouldn't see her.

She didn't quite know herself why she took these precautions, but it was in the back of her head that the conversation she had just overheard was of importance, in some way, to the Raynor case.

Moreover, she gathered that it referred to the will of Mr. Raynor, and that there was some wrongdoing on the part of somebody in connection with that will.

She couldn't quite bring herself to think anything so terrible as these two men planned to destroy a will, yet the fragments of conversation she had caught pointed that way.

Unversed in the ways of wicked men, Dolly was intuitive by nature and sagacious beyond her years.

The more she mused over the matter, the more she began to feel sure that the missing will that gave the Raynor property to Nan was concealed in Glim Gannon's house. She distrusted the man—although she admired his erudition, and was grateful for his kind instructions in the field she was deeply interested in—that of natural history.

Always an outdoor girl, Dolly studied the habits of the little creatures, and by reason of Gannon's influence had turned her study especially toward birds and the larger insects. Butterflies and moths fascinated her as well as the water fleas. So her presence in Gannon's house was always welcome and unquestioned. The old woman who kept house for the hermit liked Dolly but paid no attention to her comings and goings.

Church Notes

Singing is now possible for everyone at the Compton M. E. church as the number of hymn books has been almost doubled, and we have enough to supply a church full of people.

"Victory in Defeat" will be the subject of next Sunday morning's sermon. Among other things this sermon will deal with the principles which were involved in the issue that led Dr. Harry E. Fosdick to resign from a pulpit which he had been serving in a very acceptable manner for five years. Dr. Fosdick is one of America's outstanding ministers.

Remember that the best way to keep abreast of the on-going religious life of the world is to attend Sunday School and Church services regularly.

A number of new members have joined the choir. The possibilities of working up a Christmas Cantata will be discussed Friday evening. Practice at 7:00 p. m.

Rhode Island Reds Foremost of Breeds in Land, Green Says

By Horton R. Green

This breed of fowls came into existence in a little different manner than any of the other American breeds. Indeed, we might say, in its incipency, it was sort of "self-made" or, like Topsy, "just grew."

During the full last half of the nineteenth century they existed in Rhode Island and were simply known as the red hens. It was observed that they were good layers and so it came to be considered that any red hen was a good layer, then everybody wanted red hens, and as the bordering states noted their laying qualities and began to ask for them, they designated them the Rhode Island Reds. Thus the name came before the breed, as we now know them. When poultry breeding began to be a science, nearly fifty years ago, some of those most interested in poultry took up these red chickens in Rhode Island and began to breed them after a certain type as to shape and also as to color but not until about 20 years ago was any attempt made to standardize them. They rapidly became popular and were admitted to the standard of perfection about the close of the last century.

Their popularity rests almost exclusively on the utility qualities, as they have always made good both as large egg producers and as winners in their pullet year.

This writer began breeding them before they were admitted to standard and produced some very fine specimens and did a little by voice and pen to help get them to the front where he was sure they really belonged. They soon sprang into great popularity with all who look to the utility side of the industry and their popularity has never waned in the least.

There are two varieties in this breed, the single comb and the rose comb, the only difference between the two being in their combs. Like all other rose comb varieties about one in ten will have a single comb and these single comb sports are apt to have as fine single combs as those hatched from single comb eggs.

I have found the Reds very prolific layers, pullets beginning to lay shortly after they were six months old and continuing doing so all winter, under favorable conditions. They become broody but are not persistently so and when "broken up" will begin laying again in about a week.

With proper care in this regard they can be kept laying all summer and well into the fall, if well fed.

They do not keep fat while laying, as do the Rocks and Dottes, so should be fed awhile before selling for best results; nor are the chicks often in good flesh at broiler and roaster age but are often too thin to sell well.

This thinness of flesh in nearly all R. I. Red chicks is the chief objection to the breed; in every other respect they are among the very best all-purpose breeds. Any one well established in breeding Reds need not try to improve by trying another breed, if he is looking for an all purpose fowl.
